HUMBLE HOG TAKES PLACE IN HISTORY

Missouri Scrubs Brought Over by Columbus on Second Trip Over.

Jefferson City, Mo. — Persons who trace their ancestry back to the time of the discovery of America, and who are far outdistanced in the native American lineage by the "scrub" hog of southern and southern Missouri, will find in the "Humble Hog" a new chapter in the history of the state. A book which is soon to be published as a bulletin by the Department of Agriculture of Missouri under the supervision of Secretary David Mayes, tells the story of the humble hog.

Another proof that hogs were known in Missouri long before the pioneer settlers brought them from Virginia, Kentucky and the Carolinas is shown by the historical records of the Jesuit Fathers who established missions in Texas. They brought hogs from Mexico, which had been stocked from those brought by Columbus to Haiti.

AREA TEST WORK.
Jefferson county will take up the area test to be held in the county at a meeting to be held in the court house, Jefferson, on March 8. Dr. J. S. Hefley will be one of the speakers to discuss the work.

OPERATING CRUSHER.
George Nelson, operating one of the Rock county Farm Bureau crushers, has started grinding at the lime pit near Janesville off Pleasant street. Orders for ground lime can be made either directly at the pit or to Secretary H. E. Harding, court house, Janesville.

MEET IN EVANSVILLE.
The next meeting of the directors of the Rock County Farm Bureau will be held in Evansville on March 13. There will be a women's meeting on the same date with Nellie Kodzie Jones as one of the speakers.

Physicians advise keeping the bowels open as a safeguard against Grippe or Influenza.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowels to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a cathartic. It does not irritate the bowels and cannot grip. Try it today.

MARION IN SERMON
DENOUNCES CRITICS

Pastor of 1st Christian Church
Blames Gossip for Congregation's Troubles.

Declaring that some people in Janesville who can't control their tongue lead a very bad life, the Rev. Leland L. Marion, in a sermon from his pulpit in the 1st Christian church Sunday morning, called into question the wisdom of those who are the subject of his seven years in the ministry.

His sermon on "Gossip," follows a year of strife and dissension in the church, largely caused by gossip, it is alleged, which resulted in the organization of the Second Christian church.

One person who makes derogatory remarks behind the back of another, was compared to a snake in the grass by the young minister. He admonished his congregation to observe openness and tell the person to his face if there was anything to be said.

"Nine times out of ten he will knock you out but those remarks will end there," said Mr. Marion. "If there was more openness of this kind there wouldn't be so much scandal and homesick about the spoken up."

Opening his remarks he declared that there would not be so much gossip in Janesville if some people would read the 3d chapter of James once a week for six months. He took his text for his sermon from the 34th psalm, 13th verse: "Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile."

Mr. Marion advised the congregation that what he said was in a spirit of love and that he spoke as though Marion was down in a pew, and added that he was not going to railroad anybody.

"I'm all imperfect in the sight of God," said Mr. Marion. "I've consulted the doctors about speaking on this subject; if they want to fine me afterwards I make no difference to me, for I speak the word of God."

The minister defined blasphemy, told about those persons who love to dwell on the faults of others, declared that he was looking for a perfect man.

"We're all imperfect in the sight of God," said Mr. Marion. "I've consulted the doctors about speaking on this subject; if they want to fine me afterwards I make no difference to me, for I speak the word of God."

He spoke against those in Janesville who delight in telling half-truths as who tellers, leaving their listeners on the dark side.

"James says let our lives not be influenced by the tongues of others. Let us have backbone enough to say 'I will be influenced only by what I can find to be the truth. A man or woman who continually talks will be brought into judgment. How pitiful it is to see those who are deaf and dumb, but sometimes wonder why God did not make us so."

650 HONOR NUN IN GOLDEN JUBILEE

Sister Joseph, 50 Years in Convent Here, Given $900 Purse.

Six hundred men and women from this city, Beloit, Edgerton, Evansville, and other surrounding towns gathered at St. Patrick's auditorium, Sunday afternoon, to do honor to the venerable jubilarian, Sister Mary Joseph, who has worked as a sister in this community since 1870. In the informal reception after the program, Sister Joseph greeted her old friends many whom she had not seen in years, but whose names and faces were familiar to her.

The Rev. Dean James F. Ryan acted as toastmaster and presented Sister Joseph with a purse of nearly $900 raised by her many friends. He complimented her upon the large following she enjoyed and expressed his appreciation of all she has done in educating St. Patrick's community.

Daugherty Gives Talk

United States District Attorney William H. Daugherty, a former pupil of Sister Joseph, recalled some of his boyhood experiences at the parochial school in which Sister Joseph several times befriended him. He emphasized the shallowness of the glories of the world such as fame and riches as compared to the life of service which the jubilarian enjoyed.

Mayor T. E. Welsh, another pupil of Sister Joseph, recounted his school days in the Catholic school when it was located in the basement of St. Patrick's church. He told of the building of the convent and new school and expressed his appreciation to Sister Joseph in instructing him in his faith. In closing the mayor complimented the audience on the present auditorium which has made possible such gatherings as the jubilee.

Dr. J. T. Fember told of his association with Sister Joseph in the past 35 years in which she acted as the comforting angel at the bedside of the sick and dying. He said that in no other life could he do such noble service as that done by Sister Joseph.

The Rev. C. M. Olson, St. Mary's church, spoke briefly on the acquaintance with Sister Joseph and of her unceasing interest in his since his ordination. He said he was pleased to see so large a gathering to do honor to this woman as people are prone to accept the noble work of the nuns as a matter of course, neglecting to give them credit for their many sacrifices.

An illustrated lecture "Our Lady of the Lourdes" was given by Eustace E. Jensen, a former resident of this city, who told of "Our Lady" appearing in a vision to the little peasant girl Bernadette in the village of Lourdes, France. The establishment of the shrine and building of the church were explained and pictures shown. A pilgrimage to the shrine portrayed several hundred sick attending the services and obtaining relief from their ills.

E. J. Leary sang "The Bells of St. Mary's" and Theodore Davy sang "When I Come Home to You" and "Call Me Back to You Mine." Harry Selgel played piano accompaniments.

Refreshments were served by the women of the church and the Young Ladies sodality. Baskets of gold and white flowers and potted ferns decorated the stage. Sister Joseph sat in a chair wound with gold ribbons.

Solemn high mass will be celebrated at 10:30 Tuesday morning at St. Patrick's church to which priests of the surrounding towns have been invited. A banquet will be served at noon for the priests and sisters.

MOTT'S ADDRESS TO BE SENT BY RADIO

Owners of radio sets here will have opportunity to hear the same address, Monday night, that four Janesville, Y. M. C. A. officials and a number of men and young men heard here at the Y. M. C. A. Monday to hear. The address by Dr. John R. Mott of the International Y. M. C. A. committee, which will be given at the Y. M. C. A. business meeting, Monday night following a "retreat" in the afternoon, attended by men from all over the state, will be broadcasted, as will the songs given by the Y. M. C. A. Singers. Several of the Janesville representatives have been in that city over the week-end, going to attend the Y. M. C. A. and secretaries' meetings, Saturday and Sunday.

500 at Funeral of Frank Albrecht

Five hundred friends and relatives attended the funeral of Frank A. Albrecht who was killed by a train, Thursday, at the Elk Ridge road crossing. Services were held at 2 p. m. at St. Peter's Lutheran church with Dr. Schaffner, Maywood, Ill., officiating. Burial was in Oak Hill cemetery.

HOLT IS LEADER FOR LIVE WIRE SESSION

"Work" will be the topic for the lesson at the Live Wire leaders corps meeting at the Y. M. C. A. at the hour of 6:30 hour Monday night. P. O. Holt is to be leader. The Rev. J. A. Melrose will have charge of the meeting in the absence of A. C. Preston, who is in Milwaukee, and will read the devotionals in the absence of E. P. Hooking. Group meetings will be held at various homes.

Hall Caine's Opinion
Owing to the great revival of Bible reading which is spreading over the world, the ideas of many eminent writers have been collected and the following expressions of Hall Caine as to the Bible is like a great tribute or acknowledgement of deep debt. "I think I know my Bible as few literary men know it. There is no book in the world like it, and the finest novel ever written is short in interest of any one of the stories it tells. Whatever strong situations I have in my books are not of my creation, but taken from the Bible. The Deceitful and the Prodigal Son. The Bondman is the story of Esau and Jacob. The Scapenote is the story of Eli and his sons, but with Samuel as the girl and Mary as the boy. The story of David and Uriah."

What an added interest there must be after or while reading a novel or novel one is able to quickly seek out the reference or the passage in another book which inspired it.

The new Big Print Red Letter Edition which is now offered for a short time to its readers on a coupon plan is a marvelous acquisition at almost any price and this way it is so very simple. There is not a drawback at present, the coupon is given on each page of this issue. Advertisement.

In Which Rolling Stones Gather Considerable Grief

Mrs. Emily Duryea and her husband, Clark.

Clark Duryea was pastor of the Holy Roller church here, where the members of the congregation roll, tumble and roar.

And the Rev. Mr. Duryea continued as pastor of said church until one lovely day when overcome by some unknown spirit he rolled right out of the life of his wife, Mrs. Emily Duryea.

Mrs. Duryea was a roller in good standing, but she objected to the rolling tactics of her husband in getting out from under his bread-winning responsibilities.

So she rolled down to the police station and started the ball rolling. The police rolled about in the municipal "rolls" until they succeeded in rolling Duryea right into a rolled steel wheel.

Then they unrolled a manuscript charging him with abandoning his wife and children.

Now while Duryea was rolling on his cot in the jail cell, Mrs. Duryea up and rolled right out of town and according to police, one Earl Vermy rolled out with her.

From then on for a time the whereabouts of Mrs. Duryea became rolled up in deep dark mystery. But by and by news rolled in from Birmingham, N. Y., that Mrs. Duryea desired the arrest of her husband on the desertion charge.

The police here rolled up to Birmingham in their "rolls" and requested authorities to put an end to the rolling of Mrs. Duryea by placing her under arrest on a statutory charge.

That is how the case stands at present, but the rolling may be resumed at any time.

Considerable discussion accompanied the action, it being thought by some that the money could go toward paying expenses of the choir to sing before the high school and faculty bodies the following day, this latter being thought inadvisable because of the opinion citizens might have that it was a religious affair, and for other reasons. A reason advanced by Mr. Jensen and Mr. Hammelund for allowing the use of the place was that the choir is a college organization and a concert by it is an educational affair.

President Jesse Earle was ill, and unable to be at the meeting. Supt. F. O. Holt attended.

Uah—and You

Over 4,000 years ago an Egyptian named Uah made a will which not only provided for the disposition of his property, but designated that property in detail, named a guardian for his boy, provided a permanent home for his wife, and stipulated where he and his wife should be buried.

This will dates back to 2518 B. C. It was attested by three witnesses (more than required by law in most states today), and the occupation of each witness was definitely named. This will, which can be translated in 168 words, is remarkable for the clear and definite way in which it expresses the wishes of the maker.

Many a modern business man with all the accumulated experience of four thousand years of civilization behind him, is more careless about providing for his family, after he is gone than was this ancient Egyptian. Perhaps this is why so many family fortunes are dissipated within two or three generations.

We would be very glad to have a copy of a very interesting little booklet entitled "Safeguarding Your Family's Future." You surely owe it to your loved ones to call or write for it.

Consistent effort to secure for Janesville a modern hotel so that this city may take care of many conventions as well as the traveling public.

Making the Rock River park in every way a delightful playground for the people of the city. Establishment of free baseball grounds, tennis courts and outdoor sports places, bathing beaches and all the necessary improvements for making it a popular recreation place for Janesville.

Clean out the hoodlums and blind tigers and establish a real estate mortgage company to make the building of homes more easily accomplished.

Additional room in the post office by building an annex.

Arranging a road building program so that the farmer and taxpayer will be the greatest beneficiary.

THE SPRING CAMPAIGN.

In less than a month the citizens of Janesville will determine the personnel of the council which under the city manager plan is the board of directors of the city. A ticket is offered to the voters of citizens in whom every confidence may be placed. That board will administer the city's million dollar business. The most important duty of that council—the one most responsible action it will take—will be the selection of a city manager. In so acting it may be said that this job is for a trained and experienced man, preferably, it has been found that one of engineering experience and thoroughly conversant with municipal problems, is best fitted. It naturally follows that the greatest care shall be exercised. City management depends so much on the manager—so much on the execution of the laws through him—that local politics should be eliminated entirely from all considerations in his selection and no man can serve the city in that capacity up to the highest efficiency and in an effective manner, who has been tied up with factions and local and personal issues. The moving reason for the adoption of the city manager plan in Janesville was that the factional management should be eliminated. That is the thing to keep in mind in this election.

Anyhow Old Tut never had a congress on his hands.

FAMINE RELIEF TO RUSSIA.

A committee here in Janesville acting with other committees in other countries, is seeking funds to aid the children and women who are suffering and will continue to starve and die of hunger, in Russia. These funds will be handled by the American Society of Friends, the official name of the Quakers in America. There is no question about the honesty in the administration of the funds or the relief for Russian peasants by this organization. It has already accomplished much, has saved thousands of lives and will continue to carry on. There is need of funds and we shall help all we can.

America has contributed enormously to save hungry Russians. It will continue to do so. We are buying and shipping grain to Russia. At Odessa and at Baltic ports the soviet government has had more than 7,000,000 bushels of wheat, rye and barley for export and has been selling its grain to foreign countries. Some of the grain has been purchased by the American Relief Administration for use in feeding the starving. The soviet government apparently cares not a ha'pennyworth whether the children die or live. Russia sells grain for revenue to keep up an army and maintain a government regardless of the gasping dead on the doorstep. There is no secret about the grain at Black sea and Baltic ports for export. More is on the way from the interior to be sold out of Russia. These are official statements received within the last few weeks.

These facts make it all the more necessary for funds to be raised and greater work to be done to save lives. There is much talk of political recognition of Russia. It has failed so far because no government trusts Russia. One reason is here in this matter of grain export. We will recognize Russia, not politically, but in another way. We will recognize her neglect of her own people and her flesh and blood. We shall continue to feed her starving until they are able to raise a crop sufficient to supply themselves and then hope that the soviet government will not steal it away.

Pitiable and nerve-racking is the story of the horrors of famine and death in interior Russia. We read of the wonderful things accomplished by the soviet from the pens of men and women who have been shown only the stage-set side. Frank Walsh, the attorney who is defending Foster, the communal radical in Michigan, recently home from a trip to Russia, told stories that fairly glowed with delight over the splendid condition of the Russian people and the accomplishments of the soviet leaders. He saw peasants plowing as his train passed through to Moscow; he saw the granter and display at Moscow. He heard nothing of the death and suffering. But so far as we are concerned we had rather take the statement of the American Society of Friends that 8,000,000 are facing death from hunger, than the word of Mr. Walsh and his like.

There may be two Russias—probably there are more. One is the camouflaged Russia for the Walshes and Senator Franks and the other is the real Russia seen by the eyes of unbiased and non-political men and women of the Quaker faith. They are also supported by the American Relief

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington.—This is the fable of The Bitter Bit.

Once upon a time there was a man in public life who had not endeavored himself to a great many popular with his associates as the French commandant in the Ruhr. He was called everything from an upstart and nincompoop to a menace. It was agreed he had no brains. Nothing but money. He contrived to get himself elected to congress. How he did so was a mystery to all the other members of the house. His mere presence in that august body was obnoxious. He claimed to be a democrat, but the democrats did not claim him. They were as anxious to do something about it as were the republicans. In that emergency someone recalled the ancient sport of butchering somebody to make a Roman holiday. It was agreed the obnoxious person should be butchered. A bright young Irish member, who had a tongue as sharp as any knife, was chosen to be the butcher.

Accordingly on the appointed day, the prospective sport having been duly advertised, all the members were in public life, and all the galleries of the house, even to the press gallery, were crowded. Even the victim was there, which gave assurance that the affair would be a complete success, with a good time had by all. It was, and they did. The butcher was in rare form. With sarcasm that was scathing, invective that was vitriolic, and ridicule that was merciless he flayed his victim. Then, figuratively speaking, he skinned him alive, nailed his hide on the barn door and hung him in his own garage. And democrats and republicans alike whooped and yelled their approval. There wasn't a dry eye in the house, and the tears were all of joy.

When it was all over and he could make himself heard, the victim arose and said that if permitted he would reply briefly to the gentleman on the following day.

Next day, to the same crowded floor and galleries, the victim told a story. He said that some years previously when he was in college there was a notorious saloon on the outskirts of a certain city near the college town. One bitterly cold night, he said, a poor drunken wretch staggered into that saloon. He was penniless and asked only that he be permitted to remain long enough to get warm. Instead he was set upon by the proprietor and the proprietor's son, beaten, and thrown out into the gutter, where dawn found him dead of his injuries and exposure. The saloon keeper and his son were arrested, tried and convicted of manslaughter, said the victim. By a strange coincidence, he said, the name of the son of that saloon keeper was identical with that of the member who had so entertained the house with his remarks of the day before. "I ask," said the victim, "that the gentleman explain this coincidence and tell the house what he knows of that brutal, cowardly murder." Whereupon he took his seat, and when he did so, the butcher of the day before was in tears, but they were not tears of joy.

The moral of this fable is obvious, having to do with the throwing of stones by people who live in glass houses, but the real lesson it teaches is that those who understate William Randolph Hearst are likely to discover that they have made a mistake.

Hearst was the victim of that Roman holiday performance in the house and the manner in which he turned the tables on his assailant will never be forgotten by those who were present. It had not been expected that he would be present and sit out the castigation that was planned for him, and least of all was it anticipated that he would have any sort of a come-back. No one credited him with being able to make any kind of a speech in his own defense. Therefore, what he did and the decidedly effective, dramatic manner of his doing it, surprised everybody, and it is a fair assumption that Hearst could have continued in the house from that day to this without being subjected again to a personal attack.

And so now, when the statement is made that Hearst is a democratic presidential possibility, it might be well for those who feel inclined to jeer to exercise a modicum of self-restraint.

William Randolph Hearst, like that other William whose surname is Bryan, is what might be called a long time candidate for the presidency. At any rate, he has entertained presidential aspirations for some 20 years or so, according to the general understanding, and from time to time it is whispered that the next campaign will find him in the running as never before.

In 1904 Hearst made his first bid for the democratic nomination. The least unkind thing that may be said of his candidacy at that time is that it was premature. Neither his party nor the country was ready to take him seriously in connection with the presidency, and beyond a somewhat meteoric success as the entrepreneur of sensational journalism he had done nothing to warrant the assumption that he would be taken seriously. It was too easy to borrow from his own newspaper methods and caricature him as the "Yellow Kid" of politics. The background of his candidacy was too ochre, and it is not to be overlooked that this is also the color of gold!

Scarcely a leader of national size or importance was identified with the Hearst movement of 1904, and it is not surprising that the movement made a little headway. Bryan was taboo that year and the party bosses under the benign auspices of August Belmont had decided to nominate Judge Alton B. Parker for president.

Subsequent events were taken to indicate that Hearst had learned at least one lesson from his 1904 experience, which was that he would have to "go and get himself a reputation" before he could hope to break into the big game. Anyhow, he was a candidate for mayor of the city in 1905, was successful, it is true, but a candidate in 1906 and the following year he made an unavailing fight for the governorship of the state. Again in 1909 he was a candidate for mayor, and again he could not get the voters, in sufficient numbers, to take his side of the argument.

Meanwhile the editor-publisher did succeed in breaking into the national house of representatives, as set forth in the fable, and was a member of the 58th and 59th congresses. It cannot be said he set the world afire with his achievements at that job, but the record may be written of hundreds of others who have cost the government more in mileage and other items than he did.

Hearst is credited with having contributed largely to the success of some candidates and with having had much to do with the political demise of others. On the whole, he is rated as perhaps more effective as an opponent and hater than as a booster and a friend, and it is certain that there are many men who would rather see the day he was born, who hate all things Hearstian.

Possibly he will not even be a candidate when the time comes. Nevertheless he is a possibility.

THE YOUTH BEHIND.

Someone will take your place when you are gone.
Will come as you to face the morning mail,
Liar the small talk and bear the burden on,
And in his care the venture will not fail.

You may be brave and wise and quick and strong
You may command with courage and with grace,
But one shall come, when you have passed along
And serve with equal splendor in your place.

And he may see what you have never seen,
May find new ways your feet have never trod,
And he may go where you have never been,
For, after all, the greatest of us died.

In all the throng you may not see his face;
Secure you seem, and all your prospects fair,
But one there is who will take your place
Against your passing, Life has placed him there.

THAT DEAR OLD BUCKWHEAT.

A Neodesmo man wrote to a Michigan milling company to know if they could furnish him with some buckwheat flour "like grandmother used to use." The milling company wrote back: "No, the buckwheat our grandmothers used was full of dirt, pollen and weed seed and was an abomination. We can give you buckwheat put up in proper and sanitary manner and free from all impurities. Our buckwheat is washed, scoured and kiln dried before grinding."

Who's Who Today

POSTMASTER GENERAL HARRY S. NEW.

Senator Harry S. New, just named postmaster general, thereby becoming the newest member of President Harding's cabinet, is a politician by inheritance. His father, John C. New, was one of the leaders in Indiana, where politics is more of a science than it is in Illinois and less of a "gamble" than it is in Ohio.

Senator New was born in Indianapolis. He is 55. He was educated in the public schools and was a graduate from the University of Indiana. When 23 he was elected to the state senate.

He was elected United States senator in 1916, and was at one time a newspaper reporter, later on an editor and finally a newspaper publisher, though at no time he ever had been called a literary man.

In 1920 Senator New was the only important supporter of Mr. Harding in Indiana prior to the Chicago convention and he was at the convention about the only person of prominence who predicted from the start that Senator Harding would be nominated.

During the campaign of 1920 Senator New was in charge of the Republican speakers committee. Prior to that time he had been the Republican national chairman.

Senator New was defeated for the Republican senatorial nomination in Indiana last fall by former Senator Albert J. Beveridge. His term of office expired March 4, 1923. Senator New offered two cabinet posts prior to President Harding's inauguration, but declined both.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

A Warning to Scoundrels.

The verdict in the Stewart land fraud case was in accordance with the facts before the jury in the evidence. No form of swindling is more contemptible than that which induces hard working people to invest their savings in a fraudulent enterprise. The testimony showed farmers agents had been induced by Stewart's agents to sell their property and invest the proceeds in land in the Rio Grande Valley on the assurance that it was irrigated. It was not irrigated and they saw their crops burn up under the fierce sun. The savings of years were engulged in the fraud.

The public has the right to the same protection from the criminal de luxe that it has from the ordinary holdup man. The outcome in the Stewart case will help protect people from the operation of crooks who would have been encouraged had Stewart been able to do what he did and get away with it.

Further it is a wholesome thing for the country to see the assurance that punishment is meted out to the influential criminal just as surely as to the criminal without influence.—Kansas City Star.

OH, BABY!

Please print a record of which I believe you printed some time ago for "Unruh Heep" hands. (J. F. M.)

Answer—Baby's acid.....2 drams
Alcohol.....2 ounces
Glycerin.....1 ounce
This lotion may be applied to the hands twice daily.

Please tell me in your column the kind of acid to use on warts and moles. (Mrs. G. E.)

Answer—Do not use an acid. No such application is safe to use on a wart. Use 50 grains of glycolic acid in half an ounce of flexible collodion. This may be used with success for isolated warts. When there are many warts or when warts are on the face, only a physician should treat them. Amateur "doctoring" of such a condition of lesions sometimes brings disastrous results and doesn't pay.

What is migraines? Does it ever start with a shimmering of light before the eyes, which lasts half an hour or so? (Mrs. E. E.)

Answer—Some such aura commonly introduced the seizure of a migraine (migraine) which is a kind of periodic attack of sick headache.

Answer—The beef juice itself would be a valuable food for the invalid, though the expressed beef juice has some food value if the patient can't eat the meat.

Aortic Valve Disease.

What is meant by aortic regurgitation? (J. F. M.)

Answer—Disease of the heart in which the valve between the ventricle and the great artery fails to close between beats, hence allows some backward leakage (regurgitation) after each heart beat.

Q. Does France own the French railroad? H. L. E.

A. The railroad of France comprises seven systems, five of which are privately owned and operated. The present state is the result of the law of 1883, which left the principal lines in private hands, but under government control. According to the charters of the railways, their franchises expire between 1950 and 1960, when the entire railway system will pass to the state without any compensation. New construction is done by the government, the companies being assessed for the purpose at a rate of $5,000 per mile.

Q. How long has Wedgewood pottery been made? F. O. E.

A. Joseph Wedgewood made his first piece of pottery in 1748 after several years' apprenticeship in the trade.

Q. In Henry's poem "For ever the knightly years were gone," what does "ever" mean?

A. This is an old use of the word "ever," and is equivalent to "forever" or "for ever." The poem is by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, and is published in "The Complete Poems of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow," N. Y., 1896.

A. The buildings in London are low, none exceeding 200 feet in height.

Q. What kind of glue is used on postage stamps? F. D. V.

A. The following is given as the formula used by the government: Gum arabic, one part; water, one part; sugar, four parts; water, sufficient to give the desired consistency. The gum arabic is dissolved in water, then it is thinned down to the desired consistency. Cheaper envelope gums can be made by substituting dextrine for the gum arabic, glue, and sugar, and adding glue acid to preserve and help stiffen the other details.

Q. How many brown factories are there in this country? J. A. C.

A. In 1921 there were 459 establishments in the United States whose annual products were valued at $5,000 or more. The total value of products produced was $15,185,000.

HOROSCOPE

MONDAY, MARCH 5, 1923

Good news appears to be abundant today, if the stars are to be trusted. Astrologers find that while Neptune, Jupiter and Mercury are in benefic aspect, Saturn is strongly adverse. Great activity in the part of the navy and these who control its movements is foretold.

Messages of supreme import will be received this month when the distinguished men of the United States will hold conferences.

This should be a favorable direction of the planets for the president and his cabinet, who will be called on for some decision in an unexpected diplomatic complication.

Trade should be exceedingly good this month in many parts of the United States.

Many combinations of interest in manufacturing enterprises and in merchandising are on foot.

The second half of the United States government will engage in immense financial projects, the public revenues being heavily drained.

All the signs appear to presage widespread discontent in labor circles, owing to a national crisis.

Many strikes may be expected as the spring advances, if the seers are to be believed.

Warning is given that real estate will not be active in certain places where inflated values have been prevalent.

While there may be a decline in the price of land in centers of population, rents will not decline appreciably. It is announced.

There is to be something that interferes with constructive work in the United States and for this reason, thrift is preached by astrologers.

Persons of all classes are admonished to practice economy, for there will be need of wisdom in husbanding both public and private resources.

WAY ANSWERS BASIC LAW ATTACK

Supports Supreme Court in Address Before Women's History Class.

Considering the attack made by Senator R. M. La Follette on the Supreme Court in his address at Cincinnati, Prof. R. B. Way, Beloit college spoke before the Women's History class at Liberal Hall Saturday afternoon, telling of many defects in the points of attack made by the senior senator and parenthetically inserted much information of the state of the court with his own conclusions, he coincided with that of many prominent historians, who after devoting a life-time of study to the decisions made by the court and to history in general and of the United States in particular, have decided that the supreme court is "unscrupulous and incorruptible" and stand as a shining example of the greatest judicial court the world has ever known.

Filled to "Pack" the Court.

Every president who has tried to pack the court with his friends and with those who will render decisions that he wants" said Prof. Way, "has failed and in instance after instance members have been appointed on that bench by presidents who wish to have certain rules made, and when they realize their power and see the attitude of the other side of the questions have disappointed the person who put them in."

Among the points in the above-mentioned Cincinnati speech, which Prof. Way took exception to were that the constitutional fathers, meeting in Philadelphia, did not intend to have a supreme court with the power that it now has; that the power was not authorized in black and white and that it was against the people's wish to appoint Justices to this office; that it has been repudiated by the people by almost a direct vote.

Would Hit Congress.

The first he answered by saying that if of the constitutional fathers had signified their wish that a supreme court be made which would have the power that it now has, students of history would have discovered this fact time and again, he said. He answered the second by saying that if only those things are

"To the Advantage of Consumers and the Public"

A court in Wisconsin declared recently that "the marketing policies of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) work to the advantage of consumers and the public."

The LaFollette investigating committee in Washington brought out facts which proved the same thing.

The investigation of this Committee developed, we believe, just why the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been uniformly successful, and why it has within the comparatively few years of its existence contributed so materially to our national prosperity—more particularly the prosperity in the Middle West.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) attributes its success primarily to the fact that it earnestly desires to render the public a complete cycle of essential service, from oil well to refinery, to the consumer.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a large retailer of its own products. It maintains for this purpose a distribution system which for size, thoroughness, and efficiency is unequalled in the world. It maintains and expands its business solely on a basis of quality and service.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has steadfastly maintained the policy of minimizing the spread between manufacturing costs and retail selling prices. This has meant, and means today a low price for gasoline and other petroleum products as compared with other essential commodities. A glance through any Department of Labor Bulletin featuring comparative prices for necessities will demonstrate this fact.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of its success. It believes that its methods are exceptionally efficient. It believes that in many instances they have been a valuable contribution to the country's economic progress. It believes that the Company's activities redound to the advantage of the consumer and the public.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Pandora Nicholson is so shy that she dreads meeting people and can never find anything to say to them. As a result, she makes no friends and feels like an outcast, even among her own people. She lives, as a poor relation, with her Aunt Maude and Uncle Peter and their very popular daughter, Gladys. All of them tell her so often that she is hopelessly stupid that she believes it. She does make one friend in the village, Morton Newberry. Because he is kind to her, she is passionately grateful, thinks she is in love with him, and when Gladys suddenly decides she wants Morton and goes off and marries him, leaving Pandora alone and broken. Soon after, Gloria Gates, a New York woman Pan had met before, sends for her to look after her son, Frankie.

In the city among kindlier people, Pan begins to find herself and to see that she was an outcast before only because she was superior, not inferior to the people she had been with. She falls in love with George Ridgeway whom she thinks in love with Gloria. Gloria is in love with Saint-Gloria, who lives in London. Gloria takes a business trip with her, and Pan, who is in love with her, goes to see Saint-Gloria. Gloria comes in one day announcing she has just married him.

FRIENDS

Chapter 87. As in most undertakings, the beginning is always the hardest. Had Mrs. Clarke not been in, had the maid who answered, had a stiff and severe expression, had there been uncoincidental guests, Pan would have fairly quaked in her shoes, and probably given up her attempt to make new friends. But Mrs. Clarke was in and delighted to see her young American friend. The tea hour, as the girl was called, was in the English day, and Pan found it the most English of English women.

"She's just chinking her gown, m'm," the maid said. "She'll be down in a moment." While they waited, the maid came and went, with trays of tea things.

"There's going to be a party, I think," Frankie observed, counting the articles that loaded the large table. "There's a samovar for the tea, and five kinds of big and small cakes, and a whole plate of sandwiches, and she's going out for sandwiches, I heard her say so." Greedy eyes scanned the table.

"You mustn't count the dishes, that's not nice," Pan rebuked him.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best, many soaps and shampoos are on the market. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for oily scalp is Mulsified (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup of glass with a little water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly, soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Advertisement.

dish, and pour batter over top. Place with the following sauce: One tablespoon butter, sugar, a tablespoon cornstarch, lump of butter. Stir together and add one cup of boiling water. Boil for several minutes.

Veal Stew—For the stew try to procure a shank. It is meaty, tasty and economical. Wash and scrape thoroughly before placing over the fire. Pour three cups of boiling water over the meat, allow to boil up well, then turn down the fire and simmer for two and a half hours. By that time the meat is ready to fall from the bone. Water may be added from time to time, but it is best if the amount of water does not exceed the original amount. Remove the bone, thicken liquor around meat and serve.

Trapplet Delight—Cook two-thirds cup mince apples in two and one-half cups of water until clear. Add one cup light brown sugar, two-thirds cup dates stoned and cut in small pieces, one-half cup raisins. Boil from five and serve with cream or top milk.

It may be improved by adding a small amount of butter in which the brown sugar is cooked before it is added to the tapioca. The flavor is richer, more like a butterscotch.

SUGGESTIONS

One of our readers asks if we can tell her how to make a footrest out of tin cans. Take seven tin cans of the same size. Cover each can separately, allowing enough material to be turned in at the bottom of the cans. Arrange the six cans around the seventh and sew securely. Pad the top a little and cover with carpet, velvet or any material you have on hand. A rug may be put at the top of the cans before the final covering is put on.

Use Potatoes—When making gravy, fry or roast meat use the water your potatoes have been cooked in, for it contains mineral salts from the potatoes.

Waxed Paper

Instead of keeping waxed paper in the original roll, as it slips and slides so when rolled or unrolled, put two tacks less than the width of the paper apart, on the inside of any handy cupboard door and unroll the paper and near the top, force over the tack heads. It is then ready to tear off, sheet by sheet.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My sister and I have a girl friend who comes to our house every time. Her father is good for nothing because she doesn't work. The girl isn't able to do anything but sit around and wait for her father to come home. My work is very hard. Each week I give my mother two dollars. I do not regret it, because, for I think the world of mother.

I am not allowed to have company as my girl friends do. I am not allowed to go to the movies and other such things and I never care to be on the go. But I would love to be allowed a few pleasures in life. At one time I went with a very fine boy from out of town.

My mother liked this boy very well, but at that time I was trying to keep my father from knowing what I was up to and I dropped him. Mother could find out that I had never said I should quit him. This boy and his parents think a great deal of me. He writes to me once a week and he has asked to come back. He hasn't gone with any girl since he stopped coming to my house. I have heard from him three times.

Should I let him know he can come back or should I continue staying at home, missing all the enjoyment of my young life? I don't know. I am a young man writes to me, tell him you would like to have him come to see you. Say that you are not sure, but you will write to him if he writes to you. I am sure you will not advise him to write to you until he has written to you if he loves you a letter.

JOSEPHINE AND ANN: Consult your family physician.

A TROUBLED HEART. Your father is certainly unfair with you and your sister. My advice is to look for work elsewhere. If you find a position you can tell your father that he will have to pay you what you would get at the other place and give you privileges in the home as he has given to your sister. If you are old enough to choose your own friends and to go with young men, don't be cowardly about the matter, because if you remain under his subjection you will spoil your life.

TODAY'S RECIPES—Salad: Boil one package of lemon jelly dissolved with one pint boiling water. Cool and when it has begun to thicken add one cup of apples diced, one-half cup celery and one small bottle of pimento stuffed olives which have been sliced thinly. Cherry Pudding—Mix together one cup sifted flour, two level teaspoons baking powder, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Moisten with enough milk to make a thick batter—about one-third cup. Put one and one-half cups canned cherries in a buttered granite CUTTING THE NAILS—Here the manicure scissors should be used. The nail itself is first filed to a pretty pointed oval, carefully cleaned and smoothed with a bit of emery paper, but not pushed down to each edge. Meantime the cuticle, softened by immersion in the water, has been carefully pushed back. Sometimes it will have to be cut out, but it should not be done any more than necessary. However, not more than the most careful treatment will make the little crease at each side quite smooth enough.

As a manicure scissors must be inserted carefully at each edge of the nail and the ragged bits clipped off, then if the skin is pressed back with the finger those little hangnails can be easily reached and also cut away. After that you need only rub in a bit of cream to make sure that your nails will look attractive.

Auburn Waves—The itching sensation, together with the unnatural dryness of your hair, shows that your scalp is in need of treatment. A daily vigorous massage, which you can give yourself, will increase the circulation and improve the whole condition. A good tonic, included with the massage several times each week, will also hasten the recovery; and if you wish the formula for such a tonic I will be glad to mail it to you. The

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers and you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Musterole is a pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients. Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuritis, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, hoarseness, chilblains, frost-bite, sores of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu," 25c and 65c, jars and tubes.

McCall Printed Patterns Make Home Sewing Easy

Remember the Old Days?

Remember when the annual spring sewing was a task to be dreaded?

It's all changed now since the coming of the wonderful new printed pattern—the biggest help to women since the invention of the sewing machine!

Clear instructions printed right on the pattern make every step in the cutting, fitting or sewing of a garment of the utmost simplicity. Printed arrows showing the straight of the goods prevent mistakes in cutting. The margin of accuracy makes it possible to reproduce the garment exactly as the designer planned it.

It's the simplest pattern in the world and hundreds of fascinating new styles are being shown in it for spring. The pages of the new McCall Quarterly and the new McCall Embroidery Book offer the very newest of all New York and Paris styles. They are on sale with McCall Printed Patterns in our Pattern Department.

A clever little Eton jacket has an attached under-vest and under-sleeves of a contrasting material. The effect is that of a good looking blouse underneath the jacket.

The skirt illustrated has the new rippled side drapes that are so smart.

The skirt was sketched from McCall Printed Pattern 3144, 39c. The jacket, from McCall Printed Pattern 3130, 40c.

"The deep bounce across the bodice is nicely matched to the line of the drape on the sleeves. The new voice mesh and huge bow are made of the same material as the flounces and add to the modish effect.

No dress can pretend to style this season unless it is made of more than one fabric—but not all models combine their materials to such good effect.

Hints For Those Who Sew

The following suggestions, proper of Home Sewing Week, offer interesting food for thought to the woman who takes pride and pleasure in creating articles both ornamental and useful for her personal use or as gifts for her friends.

A radiant and becoming kerchief may be achieved in a few moments with the aid of a square of Persian or Paisley silk selected from the myriad styles and colorings in the Silk Department.

Handsome damask linen guest towels carry a personal and intimate greeting when monogrammed by hand. For some particular friend. A varied choice of moderately priced towels in the Linen Department.

Many women like the idea of making their own handkerchiefs from squares of linen—whether conservative white, or the attractive sports colors, they may be obtained at lowest prices in the Linen and Dress Goods Departments.

The clever woman who likes to express her individuality in many unexpected ways chooses her own fabric and makes her own sports scarves.
The requisite length of material, from the Silk Department and matching fringe—for the ends—from the Trimmings.

What woman has not invested in lengths of tubular lingerie silk for creating dainty undervests? It comes in so many delightful weaves and lovely colorings. Plain and drop-stitch effects. A bit of ribbon for shoulder straps;
the turning of a hem, and lo, the finished article. A splendid choice at the Silk Department.

Gorgeous cretonnes by the yard always suggest innumerable fascinating articles to be made at home to add to the attractiveness of the various rooms. Scarves, pillows, bags, draperies, luncheon sets and many other interesting articles.
